WE are the Champions! In case you haven't heard we won the large club division of the Regional Challenge again. Great work! Remember to continue to report your new titles, therapy visits etc for the next regional challenge to Mada Skare. The Shep-O-Gram won the Large Cub Monthly division of the newsletter contest for the second year. Our web site took third in the web site competition. AND Helen Miller-Fisher was given the Connie Beckhardt Award. I have included a description of that honor on page 2. You can see all of our club winnings from the nationals on page 3. Hopefully I didn't miss anyone. You may note that this year our members placed or qualified in all of the performance areas except for tracking. Quite an accomplishment in addition to the new Select champions and other conformation placings.

Mada sent out an e-mail asking for volunteers for the nominating committee so we can have a slate of officers to vote for in January. As you know, most of the club positions are 1 year terms with the exception of the board. Every year a few members form the nominating committee and approach people about running for office.

Our club is a very active club. We have an annual awards banquet, monthly meetings, back to back specialty shows, and this coming year the futurity, several matches, back to back herding trials, The Herding Fun days, this year a German Shepherd Fun Day, and the State Fair demos. Sometimes we have presentations, and geocaching days. All of that takes volunteers, chairpersons, officers and participants. While other clubs are dwindling we have been thriving, growing, and doing new things. The herding trials, and fun days are recent additions to our club activities. Some members would like to add tracking or agility. We need the support of all of our members in order to continue our activities. It doesn't have to be anything big, help a little on a committee, bring something to a pot luck, help set up or steward at a match or show. It is an opportunity to learn more about our breed, to have fun with other people who love German Shepherds, and to grow as a club.

All that being said, we need a nominating committee, and we need volunteers to help with the AKC match on Nov 19. If you can bring something for the potluck please contact Jan Anderson so she can coordinate what we will have. The theme is tailgating, so think chili, sloppy Joe's, beans, chips, etc. We will also have a silent auction with the proceeds going to the Faerieland Rescue operated by Kathy DuVall, who is also co chair of the match. So if you have anything to auction off, please bring it. Contact information for Kathy and Jan is on page 11.

What is the Connie Beckhardt Award

Our very own Hellen Mille-Fisher received the Connie Beckhardt Award this year. So I thought we might want to review what that really means.

First presented in 1991, recipients of the Award should exhibit the qualities of a goodwill ambassador for the German Shepherd Dog. They must display exceptional qualities in mentoring and sharing their time and knowledge with others, and lead by example, demonstrating the best of sportsmanship and care of their German Shepherd Dogs. To learn more about this award and it's past winners, click Read More.

Recipients of the Award must have integrity toward the Breed and the public, and be devoted to the welfare of all German Shepherd Dogs. Included in the definition of integrity are breeders who strive toward producing dogs with sound temperament, working ability, , OVC or SV "a" stamp certified hips and elbows, and good health.

Connie Beckhardt Award Selection Guidelines.

Member of the GSDCA for at least seven years.

Breeder of German Shepherd Dogs for at least seven years.

Breeder, on their own property, of three AKC German Shepherd Dog Champions

Breeder of one ROM.

Breeder of at least one GSD with a working title.

Cold Laser Therapy

By Julie Swinland & Dr. Mark LaVallie, DC, CVSMT

I talked to Dr LaVallie at the German Shepherd Fun Day in July and he told me he could now do cold laser therapy. I thought about that when I went home and looked it up on the internet and found that it could be helpful for arthritis. Gabby, Black Forest Amazon Queen CD RE CGC TC, Broke her right leg when she was about 3 months old. She and her mother, Amy, were wrestling in the living room and she got her leg caught under a low table. I was just a few feet away and the yelp drew my attention immediately. She was limping and had to go to the vet. She had surgery and I was assured that she would be fine. Well, that wasn't quite the case. Although she managed to get her CD and RE titles her leg was no longer straight, she was always "off" on that leg, and developed arthritis. So when I put all the pieces together in my mind I thought maybe cold laser therapy could help. She turned 10 in August and hadn't been able to jump into her crate in my truck or jump onto the grooming table by herself for probably a year. She would put her front paws up there and then look at me like she was saying "Well? Help me!"

Gabby had her first treatment a few weeks after I discussed it with Dr LaVallie. After the treatment I asked the tech to help me get her into her crate since I am not supposed to be lifting dogs for awhile, but before he could help, Gabby lept easily into her crate. I found that she can now jump onto the grooming table too! She still limps, but she seems very happy, the happiest she has looked in years. She runs and jumps over things and is her old self. Initially she was having one treatment a week but now she is having them once a month.

Gabby can now jump on the grooming table by herself

So what is cold laser therapy?

Cold laser therapy is an advanced modality for the treatment of inflammatory or painful conditions in animals.

The most common indications for laser therapy are:

- 1) Arthritis (degenerative joint disease)
- 2) Back pain (intervertebral disc disease)
- 3) Joint pain and injuries
- 4) Trauma (skin, muscle and bone)
- 5) Wound healing
- 6) Surgery (incision healing)
- 7) Inflammatory conditions:
  - a. Acute or chronic otitis (ear problems)
  - b. Anal gland inflammation
  - c. Periodontitis (gingivitis)
  - d. Hot spots
  - e. Lick granulomas
  - f. Idiopathic Cystitis (bladder inflammation)
  - g. Sinusitis, Rhinitis (nasal and sinus problems)

Laser therapy has been in use for more than 25 years. More than 3,000 scientific publications have been written validating its effectiveness.

It has been demonstrated to be non-toxic and to have no adverse side effects.

What is Laser?

Laser utilizes light energy in the red and infrared spectrum. Red light wavelength is used to treat superficial conditions such as wound healing and skin lesions. Penetration is up to 3/8 of an inch. Infrared wavelength allows for deeper penetration of up to 2 inches. It is effective for treating acute and/or chronic pain, musculo-skeletal and joint related conditions.

Laser can also be administered in pulsed or continuous modes.

Continuous laser acts fast on inflammation, stimulating blood and lymphatic circulation, thus producing rapid re-absorption of fluid build-ups (edema). When the inflammatory process is attenuated, pain is then diminished.

Pulsed laser emissions, on the other hand, have an immediate effect on pain, since they are able to produce analgesia, interfering with the very transmission of the pain response to the brain.

The bottom line is that laser therapy produces changes at the cellular level.

These changes include:

- 1) REDUCE PAIN by stimulating cells to produce their own endorphins, our body's natural pain killers.
- 2) PROMOTE FASTER HEALING by stimulating cells to increase protein synthesis.
- 3) REDUCE INFLAMMATION by as much as 75% by deactivating enzymes responsible for causing inflammation.
- 4) INCREASE TISSUE AND BONE REPAIR by stimulating fibroblastic and osteoblastic proliferation.
- 5) RELAX MUSCLES and disperse trigger points.
- 6) DECREASE SWELLING by stimulating lymphatic drainage
- 7) ENHANCE IMMUNE FUNCTION by increasing the number of "killer" cells and most importantly,
- 8) RE-ENERGIZE OR RE-POLARIZE CELL MEMBRANES to allow transport of essential nutrients across cell walls ( nutrients will not cross an injured or sick cell wall, thus slowing healing) allowing the cells to speed up metabolic processes, convert newly received photonic energy from cold laser treatment to ATP and rebuild and regenerate at accelerated speeds.

Editor's Note: This is an interesting article on training to stack. Of course German Shepherds stack with one rear leg forward and one back So adapt training accordingly.

Sue Allsby's Training For Conformation Part 3 THAT DOG'S A MIND READER!

The next trick is making the whole event subliminal. There's not much point in free stacking if you have to get down on your knees to stick your hand in the dog's face. I expect that by now the dog will be staring at your hand whenever he has the opportunity, in case it contains a treat. Good! Walk him into a stand, and try placing his front feet by simply moving your hand from side to side, instead of luring with a treat. Watch his feet, click and treat when the feet lift, just as you did when you started training him to stack. With a little work, you should be able to keep your hands at your waist and move his front feet by simply moving your right hand left or right a few inches. Eventually you'll be able to simply look at one foot and the act of looking will produce a head tilt or shoulder motion enough to tell him to move that foot. People will be amazed! You'll be a star!

Once your dog is securely stacked, there is a neat game you can play with him to keep him stacked and alert in the ring. Get him stacked, stand in front of him, show him a treat, put it behind your back for a second, and if he's still stacked, click and toss the treat. You can toss it to him to catch, or skid it along the floor in any direction and let him chase it down. Start again. Gradually take longer and longer to get the treat behind your back, and longer and longer to click after the treat is hiding. The dog knows the treat is coming, but doesn't know when, or where it's going to go, so he stays alert.

SETTING THE BACK LEGS

Teaching the dog to back up gives you control in several areas. If you aren't happy with how he's placed his back legs, you can reach down and move them by hand or, if he's reasonably well put together in the rear, you can simply ask him to back up a step, and proceed to free stack from there.

There are two ways to teach backing. The simplest is to stand in front of him. Slowly lean and step toward him until he takes a step backwards. Click the first paw moving backwards.

Teaching backup - as the handler slowly steps into the dog, the dog cheerfully backs up. Note she has walked her back legs into a perfect position - time to move her forward/sideways to correctly place the front feet!

This method has the added advantage of building in a cue – lean slightly toward the dog, and he will back up.

The other method is to lure him backwards with a treat at his nose. Lower the treat slowly toward his throat (not down to his chest, or straight back, but down onto his throat). Most dogs will step backwards. Click, and treat. This method produces a hand signal – not so subtle, but it gets the job done. The other method is to lure him backwards with a treat at his nose. Lower the treat slowly toward his throat (not down to his chest, or straight back, but down onto his throat). Most dogs will step backwards. Click, and treat. This method produces a hand signal – not so subtle, but it gets the job done.

Practise moving his head to his right or left before you ask him to back up. Does it make a difference in which back foot he moves first? Try it in the other direction. Zowie, you now have control over his back legs too!

CONFORMATION ZEN

One final trick. It's frequently necessary for me to hold bait in my hand and show the dog's teeth to the judge at the same time, so I teach Conformation Zen. Food held between my thumb and forefinger is available to the dog. Food held in my last three fingers is NEVER available. Hold a treat protected in your last three fingers, put your hand down where the dog can worry at it, and wait for him to lose interest. When he does, click, switch the treat from the protected position to your thumb and forefinger, and hand it to him. Repeat until he understands that the treat isn't available, no matter what he does, until you hand it to him from your thumb and forefinger.

Things to Consider - reprinted from the web

Some of these items are generally non-toxic while other items (including foods) can be highly toxic. Today I want to give you a list of the most toxic items dogs commonly ingest. They include:

- Chocolate
- Cocoa bean mulch
- Cigarettes and cigarette butts
- Mushrooms
- Paint balls
- Potpourri
- Grapes and raisins
- Slug bait
- Some types of chewing gum that contain Xylitol
- Pennies
- Yarn, string, ribbon, cassette tape and other similar items

If your dog eats something and you have any doubt about whether it is dangerous or toxic, always call your veterinarian or local emergency clinic.

By the way - the average cost for treating a dog that has gotten into a toxin is $342.65.
